

Iranian Diaspora Collective Stands With Iranians For A Democratic Iran

The United States is home to the largest Iranian outside of Iran, specifically in the majority public square in New York City, Times Square. The "Women, Life, Freedom" protest movement has turned into a revolution across Iran and the diaspora. Since the protest began the Iranian regime has closed down their internet access, starting over 10,000 protesters, imprisoned 10,000 and killed 10,000. Iranian women were the first to be arrested for protesting in Iran and are being persecuted by the US and EU.

another leading member, Shima, has written our platform to amplify the movement. "My goal has been to try to do the best I can for the best of the Iranian people. I know that most of my followers (especially those who live outside of major cities) don't have much, if anything, about Iran's history or Iranian culture. My hope is that this will be a window into our world, our values, and our dreams. The revolution being fought for is Iran. The shared ancestral stories about my family, his of history about the revolution in 1979, and my own family's struggles to build a better life here. I've discovered so much about Iran and its people that they can do, especially to create a better life."
